Floyd Flowers current single “Since You Moved Out, I Moved Her In”
is a great song for your Super Bowl party!

No matter whom your favorite NFL team is, singer-songwriter Floyd Flowers has showcased them in one of his 32 versions of the new single, “Since You Moved Out, I Moved Her In.” The song that reached number 19 on the Indie Country Charts is creating quite the buzz with football fans from all walks of life. Floyd is currently on a regional tour promoting the single about a lady moving out and a big screen TV moving in.

With 32 NFL football versions of the song and a music video, Floyd is set to have the best run of his career. Prepare now for Super Bowl Sunday, by downloading your favorite team version, whether you are rooting for the Chicago Bears or the Indianapolis Colts. Is your favorite not in the Super Bowl this year? During the commercials and halftime, log online to download your NFL team version and play it for your friends at your Super Bowl party. This song can be found at www.hologramrecords.com and www.cdbaby.com. His video can be seen on www.cmt.com as well as www.hologramrecords.com.

In 2001, Floyd teamed up with James Williams, a Nashville record promoter with Williams Productions and Promotions, Inc. He received his first #1 with “Bring It On Home” on the Indie World Charts. “She’s Got It,” made it to #1 on both the Indie World and Inside Country charts and charted high on New Music Weekly. He had recent chart successes with “My Own Damn Man” and “Being The Life Of The Party.” Since then, he has played on the Oklahoma Opry, Carolina Opry, Tootsie’s in Nashville and many television appearances. He has also opened for Travis Tritt, Marty Stuart, Emerson Drive and Cowboy Crush at the Lake Country Music Festival in Virginia.
